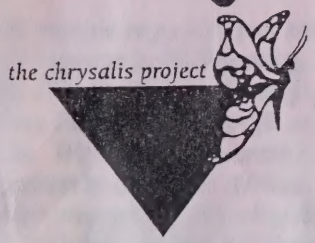
The Feminist Women's Health Center is proud to offer

The Chrysalis Project Workshop



- A 3-hour long participatory workshop for young lesbian, bisexual and questioning women (18-29 years old)
- Taught by women who partner with women
- A free service to the community

The Chrysalis Project covers lesbian-sensitive gynecological and breast health information, as well as coming-out issues, community resources, and feminist decision-making skills.

Participants learn about making positive health care decisions, connecting with and getting involved in the community, and building productive relationships with others.

Sign up to attend The Chrysalis Project!

Workshop scheduled dates:
Tuesday, November 9; Thursday, January 27;
Tuesday, March 28
All scheduled workshops are from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.
at Georgia Psychological Association's conference room
1800 Peachtree Road, Suite 525

Talk to us about bringing The Chrysalis Project to you!

Hello,

The Urban Rhyme Project and Showcase request's you and your organization's presence at the first Urban Rhyme open Mic Poetry Showcase held Thursday, April 2, 1998 at Club Flavas 5471 Memorial Dr. Stone Mountain, Georgia. This event is a charity fund raiser, the proceeds, door admissions and donations will got to "Teen Push" a non- profit organization that empowers uplifts and motivates teenagers and young adults. We hope to generate mentor's, sponsors, volunteers and a community network of different organizations to build the African American community as a whole.

The Urban Rhyme Project is in the process of gathering the largest compilation of African American poetry by non-published poets. The works that will be gathered will hopefully be published in the forthcoming book "Black Expressions of the Urban Epiphany." I hope to bring some the nations most talented underground and otherwise unknown poets to the fore front of the literary world. A small chapter or section of this book will focus on rap lyrics as a form of contemporary poetry. I believe strongly that rap artist's have mastered the rhythm and rhyme of poetry. The experience and language of the contemporary poet will one day be studied along side the great works of Maya Angelou, Langston Hughes, Elizabeth Browning and William Shakespeare. This is not to overshadow traditional poetry nor poetry written in prose.

The proceeds of this book will go to creating scholarships, grants, recreation centers and of course to promoting literacy. We need the help of organizations such as yours, this task can not be achieved alone. In order to inspire children we must first share our passions. To motivate a child, we must show how we became motivated, or what has motivated us in our lives. How did we as lawyers, nurses, journalist, doctors, plumbers, car mechanics, writers and entertainers come to recognize our own passions. These important lessons shared, I believe could easily inspire a child to find that special talent and passion.

There will be many prominent and affluent organizations represented at this poetry showcase I hope that your organization will be among them. This open mic poetry session will be an on going event every Thursday at Club Flavas and all the door admissions will continue to got to go to charity so please support us not just April 2, 1998 but every week there after. Come enjoy the live music, relaxing atmosphere and of course the live poetry show. We urge you and any member of your organization to submit original works of poetry for the compilation of poetry, for the book "Black expressions of the Urban Epiphany" we want to understand your personal epiphany as an African American mother, father , student, lover, professional ect. We would also love to see you or your members perform any poetry at our open mic session.

If there is any way that you or your organization feel they can help promote or build this project please contact me immediately any and all help would be greatly appreciated. Feel free to add us to any newsletters and circulations that your organization may have. I have enclosed a flier for this event as well, please copy and pass along, word of mouth is key to any new organization. As a twenty-three year old aspiring writer, poet and playwright I know first hand the need for community network, mentors and educational scholarships, grants ect. This project is a project from the heart and soul, with my passion shared I hope that you can attend the Urban Rhyme showcase and enjoy the show as wellas network with other organizations and most importantly share your passions.
